"UNDER SURVEILLANCE"

PARISH GALLERY

2010

This exhibit is a collaborative series that echoes a cautionary message about the delicate balance between preserving personal freedom and ensuring what is considered "security". These two artists jointly present this collection of small sculpture/painting installations in an effort to draw attention to a pervasive threat to freedom and privacy.

Mr. Overton's installations and tower sculptures, with Ms. Lesser's images of the environments where these structures loom, are powerful representations of surveillance towers around the world. Visitors can also experience life-sized towers.

Enter and observe others in the gallery: reflect on being both the watcher and the watched.

This exhibit was made possible in part with the support of: Jude Andreasen, David Crawford, Dave Seagraves, MaryBeth Souza, TJ Wyatt.
